By KIRAN KAZALBASH / FOR THE REGISTER

Since 2011, UC Irvine’s Claire Trevor School of the Arts has offered high school students a hands-on opportunity to improve their skills in dance, drama, music and studio art through its Summer Academies. This summer will be no exception.

Megan McDonald, director of the UCI Summer Academies, said these programs are not for the unmotivated student looking for a way to spend the summer, but instead are for emerging artists looking for a valuable learning experience.

REGISTRATIONS
Summer Academies in Art for Teens at UC’s Claire Trevor School of the Arts Registration is now taking place for various Academies in Art being offered this summer at the Claire Trevor School of the Arts (CTSA) at UC Irvine. Classes in Digital Filmmaking, Drawing & Painting, Sculpture/Ceramics, and Photography will provide high school students the opportunity to spend part of their summer absorbed in intensives that support portfolio preparation, and prevent summer learning loss while fostering self-confidence, leadership and peer relations. Courses are rigorous with close, focused instruction in small classes. In addition to classes taught by current or former UC Irvine Anteaters who are professionals in their fields, students may take master classes with members of Claire Trevor School of the Arts faculty, and have the opportunity to learn tips for success in the arts. All courses are geared for high school students. Materials are included in the registration fees. Visit outreach.arts.uci.edu/summer-academies-art for more information and to register.
